

Sirs,

I see know reason to update the original rules made at the onset of broadcasting. The are not outdated. This is like saying that the Constitution is outdated...although some in our government seem to think that it is, as there appears to be a concerted effort to undermine the Constitution and all that is in the public interest. The move to remove restrictions on broadcast ownership is just one more example. This has nothing to do with public interest and everything to do with corporate interest. As, a citizen of the US and therefore, part owner of the airwaves I protest any motion to remove restrictions on ownership by a single party or corporation.

Sincerely,

CT Curtin
